Professor Balliett's Lecture.

Professor Balliett of New York University spoke to a large audience at the Liberty Street School on Thursday night on the "Education of the Feelings," or "Culture of the Heart," emphasizing the importance of the training of the emotion and the will. "Few books," said the Professor, "treat on the emotions and the will, for the reason that very little is known of them! Literature and religion must appeal to the intellect through the emotion and will, and this was important for Sunday school teachers to remember."

The lecturer then went on to describe the laws governing the emotions and the will, which are well known. He said: is by exercise, not by talking about ex- | ward free of charge any shipments that ersise, and so if we wish children to be may be offered for the relief of the sufgrateful and to exercise the noble senti- ferers when addressed to the relief offiment of gratitude, we must not tell cers or organizations of San Francisco them to be grateful, so much as to lead or neighboring towns.
